KENT.

CANTERBURY.

King Ethelbert, upon his first conversion to Christianity, about the year 600. gave his palace here to St. Augustine, and the monks that came over with him, who thereupon began a monastery here, and repairing an old church in the neighbourhood (said to have been founded and filled with monks /e before the Romans /f left this island) dedicated it to the honor of our blessed savior Christ. This was by the archbishops made their cathedral, and for the most part was under the care of a dean and Secular canons, till archbishop Ealfric, A. D. 1003. turn'd them out, and put in monks in their stead; but the Seculars quickly after seem to have repossessed themselves, and continued till Lanfranc, about A. D. 1080. rebuilt the cathedral and the adjacent buildings, and replenished the same with one hundred and fifty Benedictine monks. From this time this monastery was often styled the church or priory of the Holy Trinity, as well as Christ Church, and beside the great offerings at Thomas of Becket's shrine, was endowed with lands and revenues, valued, 26 Hen. 8. at the clear sum of 2387 l. 13 s. 3 d. ob. per ann /g. or 2489 l. 4 s. 9 d. as in Speed /h. Upon the dissolution K. Henry 8. refounded this church, and placed therein a dean and twelve canons or prebendaries, with six preachers, six Minor canons, six substitutes, twelve lay clerks, ten choristers, two masters and fifty scholars, twelve almsmen, etc.

settled in this cathedral fifty or sixty Black monks. The bishopric was valued, 26 Hen. 8. at 444 l. 4 s. 2 d. per ann. in the whole, and at 411 l. 0 s. 11 d. clear; and the priory was then valued at 486 l. 11 s. 5 d. per ann. as Dugd. and Speed. But the priory being dissolved at the general suppression of the greater monasteries, K. Henry 8. brought in again a dean and six /a Secular canons or prebendaries, six minor canons, with a deacon and subdeacon, six lay clerks, eight choristers, etc.

CANTERBURY.

The before mentioned new convert Ethelbert king of Kent, upon the farther persuasions of his ghostly father St. Augustine, founded, A. D. 605. another noble monastery here, and commended it to the patronage of St. Peter and St. Paul; but the names of those two great apostles were swallowed up by the new one of St. Augustine, archbishop of Canterbury; for, after his burial here, this house was generally styled St. Augustine's abby. The monks were of the Benedictine order, and, 26 Hen. 8. were returned into the exchequer to have been endowed with 1413 l. 4 s. 11 d. ob. q. per ann. Dugd. 1412 l. 4 s. 7 d. ob. q. Speed; which last sum is the gross value in the ms /b. and the clear sum there is 1274 l. 0 s. 10 d. ob. q /b. The site was granted for life to cardinal Poole 2 and 3. Phil. et Mar.

FOLKSTONE, olim Folcanstan /a.

Eanswitha /b daughter to Eadbald king of Kent, choosing a religious life, her father, about A. D. 630. built here, for the use of her and her companions, a church and nunnery dedicated to St. Peter, which, in process of time was, as Capgrave saith /c, swallowed up by the sea, but, as others have it /d, was destroyed by the Danes, and after that granted by K. Ethelstan, A. D. 927. to Christ Church Canterbury. After the Conquest Nigell de Munewell /e was lord of Folkston, and about A. D. 1095. gave the church of St. Mary and St. Eanswide here to the abbat and convent of Lonley in Normandy, whereupon some Benedictine monks from thence were placed here first in the castle, and afterward in a building nearer the church. This alien priory had the fate of all other such like houses, to be seised, during the wars with France, into the king's hands /f, but was afterwards made denizon, and continued till the dissolution, when it was valued at 41 l. 15 s. 10 d. per ann. Dugd. 63 l. 0 s. 7 d. Speed. The site was granted, 30 Hen. 8. to Edward lord Clinton.

LIMING /g.

Ethelburga daughter of K. Ethelbert, after the death of her husband Edwin K. of Northumberland, A. D. 633. return'd into Kent, and, by the favor of her brother K. Eadbald, built a monastery here to the honor of the blessed Virgin Mary. This Religious house might perhaps consist of nuns at first, but afterward it came under the government of an abbat /h, and continued till after A. D. 964. But suffering very much by the Danes, it came at length into the hands of the archbishop or church of Canterbury.

RECULVER, olim Raculf /a sive Genlade /b.

Egbert king of Kent gave, A. D. 669 /c. to one Basse, formerly one of his noblemen, now a priest, some lands here, whereupon he built a monastery which was dedicated to the blessed Virgin Mary. It was, A. D. 949. annexed to Christ Church in Canterbury by the grant of K. Eadred, when probably the abbat and Black monks were removed; yet it seems to have been a church of more than ordinary note, under the government of a dean many years after, viz. about A. D. 1030.

THANET or Minstre in Thanet /d.

About the year 670 /e. K. Egbert bestowed upon his niece Domneva several plowlands in this island in order to found and endow a monastery, which she did, to the honor of the Virgin Mary, and placed her daughter St. Mildred abbess here over seventy nuns. This abby was plundered and burnt, and the nuns and clerks in it murder'd by the Danes several times, but chiefly in the years 980. and 1011. After the last of which times here were no more nuns, but a few Secular priests only, and their church and lands were granted by K. Canute, A. D. 1027. to the monks of St. Austin's Canterbury, who translated the body of St. Mildred also to their own church.

ELFLEET or Elslit.

Mr. Speed places here a nunnery of Domneva's foundation; which, if at all, seems rather to have been at Ebbsfleet in the isle of Thanet.

EASTRY.

Cressy, out of Harpsfield, makes K. Egbert, who died A. D. 673. to have built here, for his sister Ermenburga, a monastery dedicated to St. Ethelbert and St. Ethelbright, which seems to have been a mistake of the story of St. Ethelbert and St. Ethelred, brothers of Domneva here murdered, and for the expiation of which crime the abby of Minstre was founded.

/d Upminstre and Sudminstre old monasteries in Kent, occur in the acts of the council of Beccanceld. Spelm. i. 190. If Shepey was not also mentioned there, I should guess that the latter was this, and the former that in Shepey. But quare, Whether Upminstre was not the church or cell dedicated to St. Peter and St. Paul, built by Eadburga about a mile eastward of Dompneva's foundation. See Decem scriptor. col. 1907.

/e Not A. D. 596. as Leland. Collect. i. 97. for that was before Domneva's time, tho' Speed also makes her to have lived A. D. 590.

LE MYNSTRE in Shepey.

Sexburg widow to Ercombert king of Kent and mother of K. Egbert, obtained land of her son in this island, whereon to found a monastery, which she finished, and got well endowed for seventy seven nuns, about the year 675 /a. The Religious suffered much here upon the Danish invasions, by whom at last their house was wholly destroyed. But it was re-edified and replenished with Benedictine nuns by William archbishop of Canterbury, A. D. 1130. and dedicated to St. Mary and St. Sexburgh. Here were a prioress and ten nuns about the time of the dissolution, when their annual revenues were accounted worth 129 l. 7 s. 10 d. ob. Dugd. Speed, or 122 l. 14. s. 6 d. ob. as in two ms. Valors; and the site was granted, 29 Hen. 8. to Sr. Thomas Cheiney in exchange.

CANTERBURY.

In these early Saxon times it is said, that within the walls, on the south part of this city, was a monastery built in honor of St. Mildred, whose last abbat's name was Alfwic /b; of which neither Mr. Somner nor Mr. Battely give us any account.

DOVER.

Before A. D. 640. K. Eadbald built a chapel within the castle here, and therein placed a college of twenty four Secular canons, who were removed down into the town to the old church of St. Martin near the market by Wictred king of Kent about the year 696 /c. where they continued above four hundred years /d, till, in the time of K. Henry 1. complaints being made of some irregularities, he gave their house with all their lands and revenues to William Corboil archbishop of Canterbury, who, A. D. 1131. began the foundation of a new church with intent to settle in the same a convent of Regular canons of the order of St. Austin from Merton in Surry: But his successor archbishop Theobald, A. D. 1140. brought in a prior and twelve Benedictine monks, who were subordinate to the monastery of Christ Church in Canterbury; altho' their possessions were valued distinct, 26 Hen. 8. (about which time here were thirteen monks) at 170 l. 14 s. 11 d. ob. per ann. Dugd. 232 l. 1 s. 5 d. ob. Speed.

Without the north gate of this city, Lanfranc archbishop of Canterbury /c, about the year 1084. founded and endowed with 70 l. per ann. an hospital for poor infirm, lame, or blind men and women, dedicated to St. John Baptist. It was under the government of a prior; and its revenues were valued, 26 Hen. 8. at 93 l. 15 s. in the whole, and 91 l. 16 s. 8 d. ob. per ann. clear /d. It is yet in being, and the latest account that hath been given of it saith, that it contains a prior, a reader, eighteen in-brothers, twenty in-sisters, and the like number of out-brothers and out-sisters; and that the revenues in the whole are 195 l. 8 s. 9 d.

CANTERBURY.

The hospital of Eastbridge or Kingsbridge in this city is guess'd to have been of archbishop Lanfranc's foundation /a. However, if the confirmation of what Robert Drus gave to the church of Eastburch, and the Regular brethren there mention'd by Mr. Speed belong to this place, it was as ancient as K. Henry 1. and so before Tho. Becket's time, who is by some said to be the foun= der /b; but whoever founded it, it was called immediately after the canonization of the last men= tioned archbishop, the Hospital of St. Thomas the Martyr. Archbishop Stratford did so much for it, as to be styled the second founder. It was originally for the entertainment of pilgrims, and the revenues of it, 26 Hen. 8. were 23 l. 18 s. 9 d. ob. q. per ann /c. Dugd. Speed. It was preserved upon the reformation, but being like to be swallow'd up in Q. Elizabeth's time, arch= bishop Whitgift recovered the same, and made statutes, which are confirm'd by act of parlia= ment, whereby here are establish'd a master, a schoolmaster, five in-brothers and five in-sisters, and as many out-brothers and out-sisters.

CANTERBURY.

On the right hand of the way from this city to Dover, in the south east suburb, Hugh /a the second of that name, abbat of St. Augustine's, built to the honor of St. Laurence /b, A. D. 1137. an hospital for the relief of leprous monks, or the poor parents and relations of any of the monks of that abby. It consisted of a warden or keeper, a priest or chaplain, one clerk, and sixteen brethren and sisters; and the chief or senior of these sisters was sometimes called the prioress. The revenues of this house were valued, 26 Hen. 8. at 39 l. 8 s. 6 d. in the whole /c, and 31 l. 7 s. 10 d. clear. It was alienated in the time of K. Edward 6. to one Tipsal /d, and after by Q. Mary granted to Sr. John Parrot.

LILLE CHERCH or Heyham /d.

A nunnery of the Benedictine order, dedicated to the blessed virgin Mary, and founded before the year 1151. by K. Stephen, whose daughter the princess Mary (who afterward became abbess of Rumsey) was at first a nun here. This house had at first some dependance on the abby of St. Sulpice in Bourges /e. Here were some time sixteen nuns, but, 13 Hen. 8. they being reduced to three, and those scandalous, this priory was suppressed by Dr. Fisher bishop of Rochester, and the next year given by the king to St. John's college in Cambridge.

/a So Leland. Collect. vol. i. p. 89. and iii. 73. out of the Rochester chronicle; and Thorn placeth the benediction of abbat Clarembald in this year, col. ... But the chronicles of Dover, Bermondsey, and St. Austin's Cant. refer the foundation to the next year, when Clarenbald went with twelve monks from Bermondsey hither.

/b All the charters mention the king as sole founder; but Mr. Somner (as in Antiq. of Cant. part i. p. 124) finding mention in an old ms. of this queen Maud, 'quae monasterium de Faveresham incepit.' I have now put her in as co-founder.

/c In many of their charters and bulls they are called Cluniacs; but in Regist. Islip, fol. 113. there is 'Confirmatio electionis abbatis Feversham ordinis S. Benedicti,' and so ibid. fol. 114. et 189. and in the surrender, and all the later instruments in Southouse and Lewis, they are called Benedictines.

NEWINGTON.

There is in W. Thorn's chronicle of St. Austin's Canterbury, col. 1931. a traditionary account of an old nunnery in this town, and that, upon occasion of the prioress's being strangled in her bed, the nuns were removed to Shepey; that after this K. Henry 2. out of their estate founded here a college of seven Secular canons, but one of them being murdered, four of the brethren were found guilty, upon which the two innocent canons convey'd their two parts to the abby of St. Austin's, and the other five parts were granted by the king to Richard de Lucy. It is also said, that some writings assign this misfortune among the prebendaries to have happened temp. Will. Conq. and indeed, col. 1788. it is positively asserted that the Conqueror gave to the said abby of St. Austin's eight prebends in Newington.

Vide in Stevens's Supplement, vol. i. p. 530. an account of this house from Thorn and Fragment. Sprottian.

DAVINGTON or Daunton.

Here was a Benedictine nunnery founded A. D. 1153 /c. as it is said by Fulk de Newenham /d. It was dedicated to St. Mary Magdalene. There were for some time twenty six Religious in it, but in the seventeenth of Edward 3. no more than fourteen. The site and all the lands belonging to it, were granted, 38 Hen. 8. to Sr. Thomas Cheney.

WESTWOOD in Lesnes in the parish of Eryth.

Richard de Lucy, chief Justice of England, A. D. 1178. and who had some years before discharged the trust of regent or governor of the realm during the king's absence in France, began an abby for Black canons upon his estate here, and the next year quitted all his great places, and took on him the habit of religion, and shortly after died /c in this house, which was dedicated to St. Mary /d and St. Thomas the martyr; for so it seems Tho. Becket, late archbishop of Canterbury, was called in about eight years after his death. The spiritualities of this abby were valued at 75 l. 3 s. 4 d. and the temporalities at 111 l. 5 s. 8 d. In the whole 186 l. 9 s. per ann. Which revenues were among others granted, 17 Hen. 8. to cardinal Wolsey in order to the better endowment of his colleges, and upon the cardinal's premunire, the site was granted, 25 Hen. 8. to Will Brereton, and, after his attainder, to Sr. Ralph Sadler 28 Hen. 8.

RUMNEY, olim Romenale.

An hospital for leprous persons founded here by Adam de Cherring in honor of St. Stephen and St. Thomas archbishop of Canterbury, in the time of Baldwin archbishop of Canterbury, which being decay'd and forsaken, A. D. 1363. John Frauncys, then patron, re-establish'd here a master and one priest, almost in the nature of a chantry, which was, A. D. 1481. annexed to St. Mary Magdalene college in Oxford /a.

TANINGTON without Canterbury, or Canterbury St. James's /b.

An ancient hospital founded temp. Hen. 2 /c. to the honor of St. James or St. Jacob. It some time consisted of a master or keeper, three priests, a prioress and twenty five leprous sisters. Their revenues were valued, 26 Hen. 8. at 53 l. 16 s. 11 d /d. in the whole, and at 32 l. 11 s. 1 d. per ann. clear. Dugd. Speed, or 46 l. 6 s. 3 d. as in Somner. HAKYNGTON near Canterbury.

In the churchyard here, A. D. 1187. Baldwin archbishop of Canterbury began a chapel in honor of St. Stephen and St. Thomas of Canterbury, wherein he proposed to found a noble college of forty Secular priests, and that the king and every one of his suffragan bishops should have a prebend, every one to be worth forty marks per ann. but the prior and monks of Christ Church made such vigorous opposition to this design in the court of Rome, that, after the archbishop had in the next year settled some Secular canons here, he was forced to desist, and the chapel was, by the pope's command, levell'd with the ground A. D. 1191 /e.

SWINGFIELD near Dover /f.

At Swinfield was an house of the sisters of the order of St. John of Jerusalem before they were all placed together at Buckland A. D. 1180 /g. Whether this was that Swinfeld is uncertain; but here was certainly a preceptory of Knights Templars before A. D. 1190. to which Sr. Waresius de Valoniis, Sr. Robert de Clotingham, Arnulf Kade, and others were great benefactors. It became afterwards part of the possessions of the Knights of St. John of Jerusalem, and as such was valued, 26 Hen. 8. at 111 l. 12 s. 8 d. as a ms. Valor of Mr. Le Neve's; but at 87 l. 3 s. 3 d. ob. as Dugd. and Speed. It was granted, 33 Hen. 8. to Sr. Anth. Aucher.

Paris, p. 237. and others) king John resigned his crown to Pandulph the pope's legate, A. D. 1213. For the pardon of archbishop Langton, which was one effect of that meeting, is dated at the temple of Ewell. Vide pat. 15 Joannis n. 48. 'Pardonatio Stephani archiepiscopi Cantuar. datum apud templum de Ewell.' And that the Templars had possessions, if not an house, at Ewell, see Mon. Angl. vol. ii. p. 527. As these two parishes are contiguous, I rather think Swingfield and Ewell to have been the same house, than two distinct ones; but leave it to others.

Richard 1. or Jeffery earl of Perch and Maud his wife, the parents of Henry de Wengham /i, or some other charitable and pious persons, and commended to the patronage of St. Mary and St. Radegund. There seems to have been a design of translating this abby to the neighbouring church of Ryvere 9 Joan. but it did not succeed. The revenues of this monastery were returned into the exchequer 26 Hen 8. at 98 l. 9 s. 2 d. ob. per ann. Dugd. 142 l. 8 s. 9 d. The New Work /c at STRODE near Rochester.

About the year 1194 /d. Gilbert Glanvill bishop of Rochester built here an hospital dedicated to the blessed Virgin Mary /e, for the reception of poor travellers and the relief of other indigent persons. Here were a master or warden, and several priests, endowed with 52 l. 9 s. 10 d. ob. per ann. Dugd. Speed. This house was given, 33 Hen. 8. to the dean and chapter of Rochester. In the time of K. Edward 3. Mary de St. Paul countess of Pembroke intended to build a religious house in her manor here, but alter'd her mind and built at Denny in Cambridge-shire, to which abby she gave this manor.

CANTERBURY.

The Franciscan, Minor or Grey friers, came also into England A. D. 1224. nine in number, whereof five stayed at Canterbury, by the direction of K. Henry 3. and there fixed the first house of their order /f, on a piece of ground near the poor priest's hospital. John Diggs, an alderman, about A. D. 1270. translated them to an island then called Bynnewith, on the west part of the city, where they continued till the dissolution, after which this friery was granted, 31 Hen. 8. to Thomas Spilman.

/b So Leland. Philpot calls him Sr. Richard.

/c For they came into England that year, and this was the first house of their order, as Reyner, i. 162.

/d So in pat. 13 Ric. 2. But Speed saith to Holy Cross.

/f See Weaver, p. 134. Stow in anno 1224. etc. Yet Leland, Collect. i. 122. Stow, in anno 1508. Speed, and others, make K. Henry 7. first founder of this friery, which was settled almost three hundred years before. He might be a great benefactor, tho' Somner hath not observed it, or might change the first Conventual Franciscans into that re= formed branch of their order called Observants or Reco= lects, but could not be first founder. Weaver, p. 234. saith this house was valued at 39 l. 12 s. 8 d. ob. per ann. But there is no valuation of it either in Dugdale or Speed.

/g For then these friers came first into England, and Mr. Somner thinks this the first house they had in England, but most writers make their first house at Oxford. See the Preface.

/c Mr. Lewis saith about 1245. but it is mentioned earlier in the records. The latest edition of Camden placeth the foundation in the twelfth century.

/d It might have been also originally for leprous persons, as Mr. Philpot, besides those others. The last edition of Camden saith it was founded for receiving Knights Templars going out and coming in to the kingdom. And some say it was a preceptory of Templars founded by Lucas de Vienna, and belonged afterwards to the Hospitalars. But this I have met with no account of, either in the Monasticon or records; and I think it not reconcileable with the account of this house and its revenues escheating to the crown on the failure of its members: For then it would have gone into the general income of the order.

/b Here the pat. 5 et 6 Phil. et Mar. p. 1. m. ult. places this house; and in this hamlet was the ancient family of the Alchers or Fitz Auchers seated; so that Mr. Philpot seems upon good grounds to have corrected the name of the founder, called by Camden and Speed Albuger or Albuger.

About A. D. 1355. K. Edward 3. founded and endowed a fine nunnery here under the patronage of St. Mary and St. Margaret. The prioress and nuns were first of the order of St. Au=

/a Quaere, Whether this was ever perfected by reason of that lord's troubles and execution the next year.

/b This is probably the 'Hospitale S. Bartholomaei in Saltwood,' mentioned in Sancroft's ms. Valor, and there valued at 4 l. 6 s. per ann. in the whole; and 3 l. 12 s. 4 d. clear (13 s. 8 d. being yearly paid out of it to the archbishop and lord of the manor of Newwynton) for Saltwood and Newington are both near Hithe, and the yearly tenth of 7 s. 2 d. paid out of the 'Hospitale S. Bartholomaei prope Hythe,' as Strype's Parker, p. 114. agrees with the clear valuation of 'Hospitale S. B. in Saltwood'. Leland, Itin. vol. vii. p. 116. saith, Hythe is but a chapel to Saltwood; 'and not far of was an hospital of a gentelman infected with lepre.' There is also an account in Strype's life of archbishop Parker, p. 114. of an hospital of St. John at Hythe, founded by the jurates and commonalty of the town, and endowed with lands to the value of six pounds per ann. wherein there were then, A. D. 1562. kept and maintained eight beds for needy poor people, and such as were maimed in the wars; but the time of this foundation is uncertain.

/c I find no mention of this house but what is taken from S. Clara. Stevens's making Edmund earl of Cornwall to be brother to K. Edward 3. (and cofounder of this friery) is certainly a mistake. The collector of the Anglo-minoritica, who also mentions this convent in p. ii. p. 39. out of S. Clara, more truly calls the brother of K. Ed. 3. who was earl of Cornwall, John.

GREENWICH.

Weaver tells us of a priory here of friers aliens Minorites (Dominicans according to Philpot) belonging to Gaunt, and given afterward to Shene. The manor of Greenwich did indeed belong Gaunt, tho' not by the gift of K. Edward 3. but of more ancient donation, and was part of the endowment of their cell at Lewsham, and with that was settled upon Shene. Mr. Speed saith, K. Edward 3. and Sr. John Norbury founded a house of Grey friers here A. D. 1376. and the observants that came and fixed in the chapel of the Holy Cross here temp. Ed. 4. and were a branch of the same order, had an apartment built for them near the palace by K. Hen. 7 /a. These last were restored by Q. Mary twenty four years after they had been suppressed by her father, but were expelled again by Q. Elizabeth /b. Whether the former were two distinct houses, as Weaver p. 339. is uncertain.

of the possessions of that order, was granted from the crown to Sr. Rob. Southwell 33 Hen. 8. It is more uncertain by whom and when it was given; Mr. Philpot /a saith it was founded by John Colepepper for the Templars before their dissolution 1 Ed. 2. and that afterward it came with the rest of their lands to the Hospitalars. Mr. Speed and Weaver say, that the founder was the same with John Colepeper, who was one of the justices of the common pleas in the time of K. Henry 4. It might probably be a late donation, because not mentioned in the account of the Templars and Hospitalars lands in the Monasticon, tom. ii.

But here was also a more ancient hospital dedicated to St. John Baptist, in the gift of the archbishop of Canterbury. For by pat. 23 Ed. 3. p. 2. m. <dot> 'Rex concessit Joanni de Tamworth custodiam hospitalis S. Joannis Baptistae de Sevenoke ratione vacat. archiepiscopatus Cantuar. 7 aug.'

D. 1431. by John Kemp (then archbishop of York after of Canterbury, and a cardinal) in this town of his nativity, on the west side of the church yard, but not finished till about A. D. 1447. St. Gregory and St. Martin were the saints in honor of whom both the parish church (which formerly was appropriate to Battell abby) and college were named. The yearly revenues of this last were worth 93 l. 2 s. ob. per ann. and, after the surrender, the site was granted, 36 Hen. 8. to one Walter Buckler.

<When Thomas Tanner died in 1735, one of the projects which he left unfinished was a new edition of the 'Notitia Monastica'. The book was eventually completed and published by his younger brother, John Tanner (d. 1760), vicar of Lowestoft (Suffolk). John Tanner made a point of referring to his brother as 'the author', to himself as (merely) 'the editor'. But his contribution was a large one, and a man less modest than he was might have claimed a greater share of the credit. This is his account of the genesis of the book. The first edition 'was so favorably received, that within twenty years it became very scarce, and was seldom to be bought but at auctions, where it bore a considerable price. So that at the request of his friends, he began to revise and enlarge it, about A. D. 1715. But having the care and good government of a large diocese very much at heart, he could seldom sit closely to it whilst he was <1701–32> chancellor of Norwich; and in his latter days his infirmities made him lay it almost wholly aside, and leave it at his death very far from finished. In several counties, one place or other was omitted till he could see some book, or get some intelligence he thought needful. . . . A great many little notes were left for altering his account of several houses according to such better information as he received, after he was <1724> made canon of Christ Church in Oxford, and had the use of many things there which he could not have elsewhere. I made all these alterations, and was for the most part obliged to draw up the account of such houses anew. I have added some references, made extracts of many books that were barely referred to, and would have made more, if I had had, or could have borrow'd, books for it. . . . It is not however to be thought, that there are no mistakes or omissions in this book, that being impossible in any work, and especially in such an one as this. I hope there will not be either very many or very great errors found in any part of it, and fewest in the counties of Norfolk and Suffolk, which were so well known to the author; for a knowledge of the country, as well as searching books, is very necessary in works of this nature, and therefore such lovers of antiquities in every county, as find the accounts here given of places near them erroneous or defective, are earnestly desired, for which they will be sincerely thank'd by the editor, to send their corrections to him, tho', from the many difficulties he had to get the present book printed, he thinks it no ways likely to be ever printed again' (pp. xlii-iii). – C.F.
